

The next big thing

As I write this, the posts about Linked on the Cafe have reached nearly 300 with well over 10,000 views. Besides the I've been screwed element of the posts there was genuine excitement for a long time. At least until most people caught on.

Why is this? In every magician there beats a little voice  that tells us that there is a trick out there that will make us a legend – a household name. A trick, dvd or book that will cause strong men to weep and sexy women to tear off their clothes screaming take me - take me now! All we have to do is find it. Just look at the conjecture about U3F2 – unbelievable. This is what drives the magic market.

Someone recently told me that you're not old until your regrets exceed your dreams. There's nothing wrong with having dreams and here's hoping we all find that elusive trick that will answer our fondest desires.

Take care.....

You know my problem - I appeal to everyone that can do me absolutely no good. – Rodney Dangerfield